

Imagine if everything was sold like
AT&T Mobility is trying to sell healthcare to their employees...

.....
"C'mon, they're only $2160 a box."

"I know it's a 540% increase from last time..."

...but anything
less would be a HARDSHIP
on my troop."

.....
We're not buying it either.

CWA represents 43,000 craft employees at AT&T Mobility. These employees are being asked to pay a third of their annual base pay for their healthcare while AT&T has become the world's largest wireless provider.

AT&T Mobility's website states that they value their "team members," the folks who helped them produce their reported $42.7 billion revenue in 2007. They also claim in their 2007 investor report to "be proud to work with unions...to create and preserve jobs that pay well and have good benefits..."

So why have they proposed to CWA a 540% increase in healthcare costs for their "team members?" Why can't they substantiate this disrespectful cost-shifting? That sort of logic just doesn't...CONNECT.

CWA at AT&T
1
Union Fight Future